

Test Groin Removed

Army engineers load the last sections of a rusting test groin onto flat beds before hauling them off for scrap. The groin ran into Monterey bay from the foot of Fourth avenue to test sand movement and wave patterns in connection with the small craft harbor at Woods Lagoon. The removal of the groin went on an on again-off again pattern for several months. City officials asked for haste in removing the rusting groin as a potential swimming hazard.

◆ ◆ ◆

◆ ◆ ◆