United Nations Festival Activities Get Under Way Tomorrow In Santa Cruz

One of the most elaborate United Nations festivals ever held in Santa Cruz will acclaim the organization's 20th anniversary tomorrow in the civic auditorium.

A full day of entertainment, ceremony, booth displays and films is scheduled. There is no admission charge.

Festivities will begin with a walking procession from the county courthouse to the city hall between a "avenue of national flags" at 11:30 a.m. Girl and boy scouts will be the flag bearers.

Mayor Norman Walters will welcome officials from other cities and countries. The procession then will move to the civic auditorium where the festival will get under way at noon.

Between 2 and 4:30 p.m. a program of stage entertainment will be presented involving singing and dancing from Mexico, Turkey, Greece, Norway and the Philippines.

A special feature for children will be held at 1, 2 and 4 p.m. with a puppet show by the UNICEF puppeteers in an auditorium side hall stage.

Movies scheduled are as follows: 1 p.m., "Man to Man" with Yul Brynner; 2:30 p.m., "The Ambassador", starring Danny Kaye; 3 p.m., "Highland Games," sponsored by the Ben Lomond Scottish association; 3:45, "Development of a Village" concerning a Nigeria village. They will be repeated in the evening.

A special "Town meeting of the World" for adults and students will be held at 1:30 p.m. Eight foreign students from Cabrillo college and the University of California at Santa Cruz will discuss the United Nations.

Bruce Larkin, former member of the UNESCO commission will be moderator for the panel.

The evening program is as follows: 7 p.m., songs and dances by the San Jose State college librarian students; 7:30 p.m., dances from Greece.

At 8 p.m., childrens folk dances of Mexico; 8:15 p.m., instrumental music from Turkey by Errol Ethem; 8:30 p.m., Turkish dancers.

At 8:45 p.m., Portugese folk dances by the Cabrillo Civic club.

Musical entertainment will be provided throughout the evening by musical troubadors: James McLaughlin, bagpipes; Pete Crago, American folk ballads; Errol Ethem, Turkish melodies on a stringed instrument.

Food and handicrafts of 25 countries will be available on the auditorium floor throughout the day and evening.

A complete meal will be available at various booths.
