-- George T. Roselius, right, a Santa Cruz city employee for the past 4½ years, explains the device that won him a $25 safety suggestion award. Jerry Minford, left, assistant to City Manager David Koester, made the presentation yesterday. Roselius conceived and designed the cradle-dolly shown to transport heavy basketball standards between the storage area and main floor of the municipal auditorium. In the past, two or three men were needed to move the standards, while one can now do it by himself without risking back strain or injury.
