

Some Gifts for Young Readers

This past spring during a brief visit home, artist Jill Kostenko Fogelsong worked with the Santa Cruz Public Library, the Santa Cruz Sentinel and the Santa Cruz County Bank to make available locally her wildlife lithographs of a Bengal tiger and an African leopard.

Jill specified that $10 from the price of each sale be given to the library's Children's Department for the purchase of wildlife books. As well as money for books, now amounting to $410, Jill also presented the two framed lithographs which are hanging in the Children's Library.

According to Susan Elgin, children's librarian, the funds will be used to purchase books on bats, polar bears, sharks, buffalos, peacocks and reindeer as well as other subjects which soon will be appearing on the library shelves.

Jill reports that new lithographs of a lion and cheetah will be available in February or early March. Persons interested in having the lithographs, with $10 of the purchase price going to the local library, may contact her mother, Mrs. Wash Kostenko, evenings at 423-0143, or may leave names with Susan Elgin at the library.

Jill, a Soquel High and Stanford University graduate, currently is living and painting in Boston where her husband is a student in the Harvard Law School and the School of Business.

Children's Librarian Susan Elgin shows Kris Kostenko, brother of wildlife artist Jill Fogelsong, one of the books purchased on wildlife through the donations of his sister. Lithograph of Bengal tiger, in background, as well as another of an African leopard, also were gifts to the library from Jill.
