

Controversial Elementary School Site

This is an air view of the latest site controversy by the city school board. It is the Bay street reservoir site being considered by some of the board as an elementary school site. A San Francisco firm of foundation specialists, paid $2000 to make a definite opinion as to its safety, is expected to have their report ready for tomorrow night's board meeting. Beyond the reservoir is the West Lake subdivision. The board is split on the matter because two members said the reservoir was unsafe.