

Father's Day—As They Picture It

Santa Cruz Sentinel

II Family Interest Section

Sunday, June 16, 1963

If Dads Had Their Way, Their Day Would Be One of Total Relaxation

Hail to the chief . . . the kingpin . . . the man of the house!

Ever since Mother's Day, the commercial world has focused its attention on the necktie-wearing, handkerchief-holding, wallet-carrying head of the household — reminding you that dear old dad should be remembered with more of his traditional appurtenances.

But what does he really want on "his" day?

The accompanying pictures show how some Santa Cruz fathers would like to spend today.

Harland B. Johnson, business manager of the Santa Cruz Medical Center, and the father of four, thinks nothing could be greater than to devote the day to catching up on his reading.

Lt. Dick Overton of the police department hopes to take his usual Sunday hike in DeLaveaga park with his three children.

Phil Liberty, chief deputy in the district attorney's office, and a brand-new father, would like to be at Candlestick Park watching the Giants play Houston.

Bob Winters, the real estate man, would like to be in Tripoli where Jeff, the oldest of his three sons, recently has been assigned with the U.S. air force. His second choice: Seabright Beach.

Bob Ferguson, interior decorator who recently purchased the old Hagemann estate for his six-member family, would like to be able to "just sit" on the front steps — without having to think of painting the porch.

To the amazement of his four children, insurance man Larry Violante wants to spend as much time as possible at the keyboard. He took up piano three years ago and is serious about his practicing.

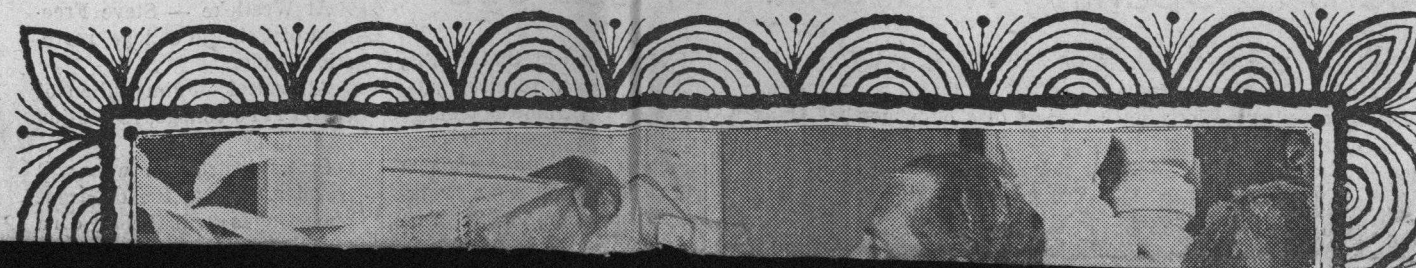

What's actually planned for these dads is told on the next page.

—Betty Bushman

Photos by Pete Amos and Vester Dick

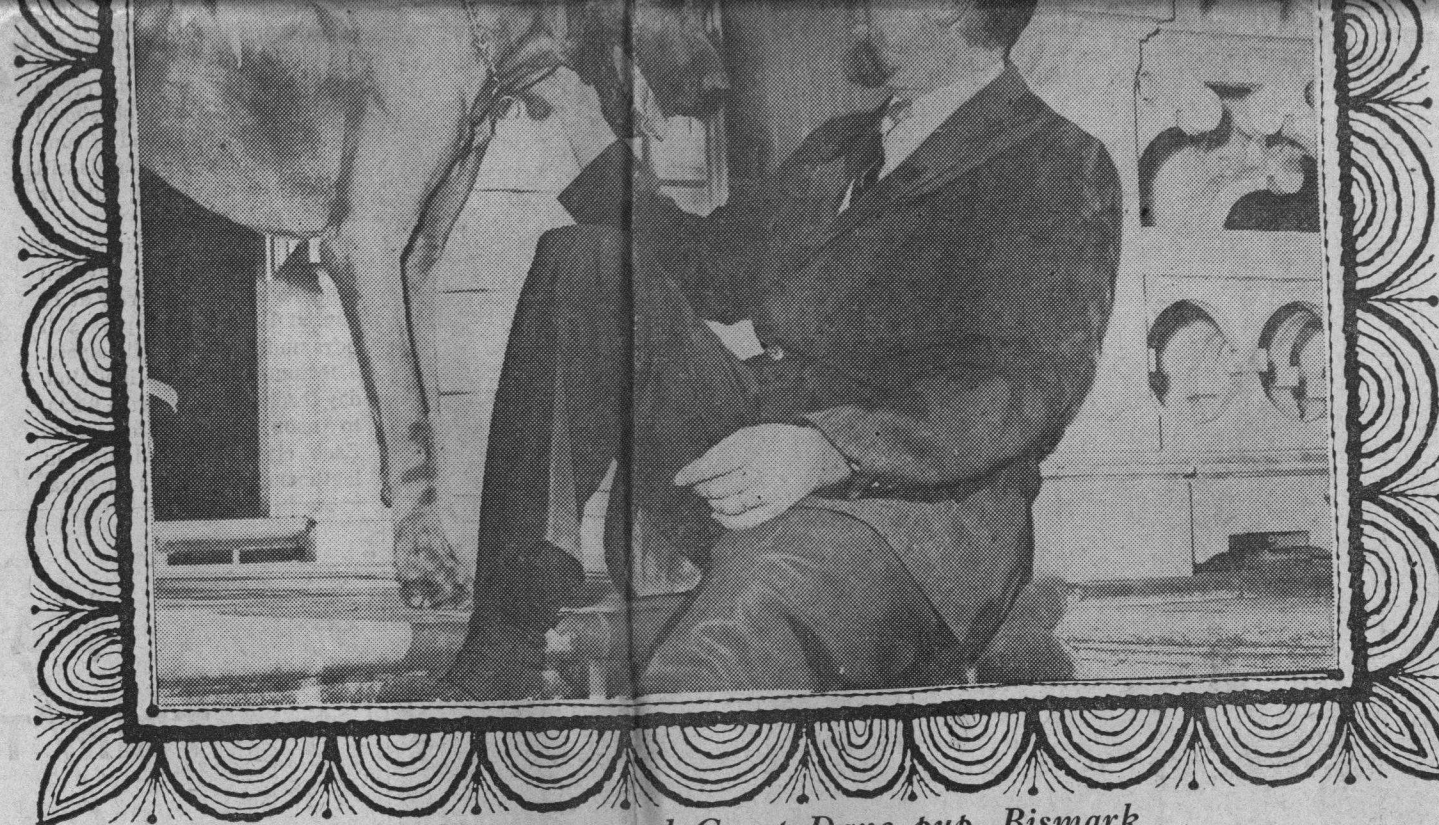

Larry Violante with Dana, 11; Paul, 4; Mark, 10; Luke, 5

Police Lieutenant Dick Overton with Gene, 13; Linda, 14, Susie, 11

Bob Ferguson and Great Dane pup, Bismark

Bob Winters at Seabright

Harland B. Johnson with (and without) Boots

Phil Liberty, rooting for Giants

Mrs. Overton

Mrs. Violante

Mrs. Ferguson

Mrs. Winters

Mrs. Johnson

Mrs. Liberty

They Have Plans, To