SANTA CRUZ YESTERDAYS

A BAY VIEW SCHOOL CLASS, CIRCA 1912

(From the Preston Sawyer Collection)

Old Bay View school, at Mission and Bay, after standing idle for some time while the new plant functioned around it, finally was dismantled last year, closing a long career of service to the community, in the field of education. It was then the oldest of local school buildings.

Most of the girls trudged to school in high button shoes in those long ago days before the era of school buses.

Minority Remained

Taken about 45 years ago, it is interesting to note that only a fraction of the group has remained here, of these probable fifth graders.

Third row: Frank Stuter, Wal-

George Dakan is a local dentist; Sewall March is foreman of the Sentinel composing room; Albert Streater is living in Santa Cruz, plus a few of the girls.

The picture was loaned by Mary Carniglia.
