KNIGHT'S OPERA HOUSE. This grand structure opened November 23, 1877 with a performance of Bohemian Girl. It was located on Union Street near where Center Street crosses. It cost $4200 to build and was eventually hauled to Capitola, where it was demolished in June of 1961. They don't build 'em like that anymore. If you look real close you can see that the signs announce John L. Sullivan's coming appearance in Honest Hearts and Willing Hands. They don't write plays like that anymore either — except sometimes.
