Hippies For Education

Hippies

5-11-67

The serenity of the San Lorenzo Valley was shattered today as hippies and housewives entered the SLV Unified School District tax election battle. A delegation of some 12 to 14 housewives were scheduled to confer at 2 p.m. today with Dr. Richard Fickel, district superintendent, concerning a full page appearing yesterday in a valley weekly newspaper, which attempted to link opponents of the tax measure with hippies. This morning the banner shown above was unfurled by the embattled hippies at their pad in Ben Lomond as a testament of their faith in education. The green and gold sign on butcher paper apparently was in response to yesterday's ad sponsored by the Volunteer Citizens School Needs Committee as part of the campaign for passage of the May 23 override.
