

Redevelopment Plans Jolted

Santa Cruz redevelopment plans were jolted yesterday with the return of a Soquel avenue land parcel.

Developers Tanner Wilson and Bud Pringle, who had planned a professional office building, told the agency they were unable to find enough tenants despite a 90-day attempt.

Wilson proposed an alternative development, a smorgasbord style restaurant, but agency members turned it down.

The property, which lies between Wilson Brothers real estate office and the Village Centre grocery, is up for grabs again with the return of Wilson-Prindle's deposit.

Expected to be among the first to present a use plan is Dr. LeBaron Bliss, whose proposed commercial development was turned down in June in favor of the Wilson-Prindle plan.

The Soquel avenue parcel is the only unclaimed one in the redevelopment area. Although several others are not yet developed, they are under option to builders and developers.
