

'82 storm victims set FEMA survey

see file 1/28/83

SANTA CRUZ — A small band of last year's storm victims has decided to do something about the frustrations of having to deal with the federal government in an emergency.

The group has developed a survey for last year's applicants to the Federal Emergency Management Agency and its helpers, the Individual Grants Program and the Small Business Administration.

The survey asks: "Are you satisfied with your dealings with these FEMA funding sources?" and "Are you willing to have your name listed with other dissatisfied clients of FEMA programs?"

The band of FEMA clients hopes to gather new members to decide on a course of action.

The surveys are being distributed at local markets and copies are available at the Association of Churches Disaster Relief Committee at First United Methodist Church, 250 California St.