SLV water board has opening

BOULDER CREEK — If you really want to get intimate with the sewer and water works in the San Lorenzo Valley, now's your chance.

Bill Van Dusen, a director of the water district board, has resigned his post, effective Friday.

Van Dusen told directors he simply has not enough time to devote to the job.

Water Board Chairman Dexter Ahlgren said he "is very anxious" to fill the vacancy and encourages residents to send their letters of application for the position to the water district office, P.O. Box H, Boulder Creek 95006.

The new board member will be appointed by April 7, said Ahlgren. The term expires in November.

One of the tasks of the new board member will be to help coordinate a master plan for a sanitation clean-up of San Lorenzo Valley.
