

City Employees Win Suggestion Award

City water department employee Robert Cummings, center, shows personnel director Jerry Minford results of a butt-welding process now used on copper tubing instead of soldering. Cummings and Floyd Bradford, right, developed the welding process which will save the city an estimated $250 a year. Cummings and Bradford were awarded $10 apiece under the city's suggestion award program.

Board Sets Up Committee To Study Marks Park Deal

The county yesterday made the first move toward gaining state money for local park development and at the same time set up an investigating committee to study the state's purchase of a 9000-acre park in mid-county.
