City Hall Poses For Unusual Portrait

10-4-66

By tearing down the public library a non-distorted, full width view of the Santa Cruz city hall becomes possible for the first time, as shown above. The library, torn down to make way for a new facility, was begun in 1903. The city hall was built in the late 1930s, which means a wide-angle lens had to be used to get pictures of the civic center in the past, because the two were separated by little more than the width of a street. The picture shown was taken from the fill area of the new library site.
