Farmers' Market ends

WRP112198

David Green of Thomas Farm in Corralitos prepares a bag of gourds for one of his final customers at the Farmers' Market Grand Finale Friday. Thomas Farm was established in 1971, but this year was the first time it participated in a farmers' market in Watsonville. "It went really well, for a first-time market," Green said. In celebration of the day, Main Street Watsonville, Inc., one of the organizations responsible for bringing the market to town, gave away 50, $20 gift certificates from local markets to buy food or turkeys for Thanksgiving. "It's an opportunity to show that Main Street Watsonville does care ...and to express our appreciation for the community," Main Street Watsonville Chairman Jose Torres said.
