

Books To The Armed Forces

The work of Mrs. Geraldine Work, head librarian, and the staff of the public library, is appreciated by servicemen as evidenced in a letter from the army service forces, north service command, library depot, Presidio, San Francisco.

The letter said: "Five cartons of books and magazines have been received at the depot as your current contribution. They are of the variety enjoyed by the servicemen and you may be sure they will be read and re-read. As the tempo of the war is stepped up in the Pacific, more and more requests for books for the fighting men are received. Continued effort on your part to gather books will be repaid in the appreciation of the GI Joes."

The library, since the war started, has given more than 5000 books to the armed forces.
