U.S. Bicentennial Quilt

On Display at Library

The Santa Cruz Bicentennial Quilt, a project of the Santa Cruz City Bicentennial Committee, will be on display at the Santa Cruz Library during the month of December.

It will then be on permanent display at the City Museum, according to Edith Prince, chairman of the quilting committee, assisted by Eva Ruffino.

Making quilt blocks which depicted scenes from the present and historical life of Santa Cruz were Rosemary Bryan, Cam Corbin, Emma Thompson, Tina Dinsmore, Lynne Giles, Carol Ayers, Harriet Manis, Tam Smith, Barbara Burklo, Yvonne Cerruti, Lelani Cross, Joanne Coury, Marion Hail, Eva Ruffino, Claire Morrill, Edith Prince, Virginia Mulholland, Luella McDowell, Julia Cheng, Diane Depace, Jean Davidson, Julia Cheng, Charlotte Melville, Alverta Orlando, Thea Boebbel, Gwen Clark and Betty Whitman.

Some of those women quilted their own squares, and others who helped quilt were Anne French, Sally Whittaker, Jan Rice, Judy Smith, Margaret Carten and Jeannie Bias.

Displayed at the Santa Cruz County Fair, the quilt earned a special award.

The names of the women who worked on the quilt squares have been embroidered by Edith Prince, and can be seen on the back of the quilt.
