

Historic Day At Loch

Busby plumed hats, kilts, and bagpipes were liberally scattered among the crowd yesterday at Newell creek dam for dedication of the lake as Loch Lomond. Adding to the historic import of the day was the first kilt-clad appearance of Supervisor Vince (Mac) Locatelli, pictured below introducing Santa Cruz Mayor John McBain. The dam and reservoir are Santa Cruz city properties.

Better Business Seen In Index

Better business in California is indicated by the sharpest upward jump and record high for 1963 in the Well Fargo index of business activity, released in the current issue of the ban's "Business Review."

Business License Deadline July 31

City business licenses which expired July 1, will become delinquent after Wednesday, according to Santa Cruz City Clerk Jack Miller.

A penalty charge of 10 per cent will be added to licenses up to 20

The Cinema
475-3395 SOQUEL

NOW PLAYING

