

South of the mall

Pete Amos/Sentinel

Although only under construction, there are still places to sit on the south mall.

Construction runs ahead of schedule

SANTA CRUZ — The new transit center just south of Pacific Garden Mall is ahead of schedule in its construction and should be ready by next April. "But it's too early to predict we'll beat the scheduled April 4, 1984, completion date," says Scott Galloway, general manager of the Santa Cruz Metropolitan Transit District. Along with the new transit center will be the extension of the mall southward, and that work is already well under way. The new transit center will provide inside and outside waiting rooms, restrooms, parking for up to 20 buses, six concessions outside and two to three shops inside along with a cafe and sidewalk restaurant. Total cost is $3.1 million, including the land.

New transit center is taking shape.

Pete Amos/Sentinel

PHOTOGRAPH

SANTA CRUZ SENTINEL
August 11, 1983

Pacific Garden Mall-1980 Oct 16, 1983

There's a new look to Pacific Avenue south of the current Pacific Garden Mall.

Pete Amos/Sentinel