

...e reporters and American advisers with combat arms in a

ing weapons and

Young Suspect Gets More Than Help From Cops

Like most people in trouble, the suspected burglar ran straight to the police station when he was caught in the act by his angry victim.

Unfortunately for him, the suspect got more than help at the Police Department. He got arrested.

According to police reports today, Greg Camp, an employee of Allegri Electric Co., was returning to his truck when he spotted a young man inside the vehicle.

Camp confronted the man, who sprinted away with Camp in pursuit.

Officers said Camp chased the young man straight to the police station where he tackled him in the courtyard outside the department.

Police inside heard cries for help and went out to investigate.

It wasn't Camp who was yelling, however.

Police today said the suspected burglar was calling for help as Camp sat on his back.

Officers assisted the young man and then took him into custody.

Today, officers said Vernon T. Sutton, 20, 311 Gharkey St., was booked in County Jail on suspicion of auto burglary.

S.C. Sentinel 2/12/82