

UC-Santa Cruz observes its 20th anniversary

Alumni members from UC-Santa Cruz' first class and a former California governor will be featured at a two-day series of events celebrating the university's 20th anniversary.

Former governor Edmund "Pat" Brown will speak at 10:30 a.m. Friday — UCSC's first Founders Day — near the Cowell College entrance, newly named "Founders Glen."

UCSC's future in education will be the topic of a talk by UC President David P. Gardner at 2 p.m. Friday in the Upper Quarry Amphitheater. His talk is part of a scheduled community-wide convocation featuring music and refreshments, as well as recognition of an outstanding alumnus for contributions to the campus and community.

A community dinner will be held that evening at the Santa Cruz Beach Boardwalk's Coconut Grove, featuring music, film and historical slides with comments by UCSC Chancellor Robert L. Sinsheimer. Cost is $20 a person and reservations may be made by calling 429-2501.

A preview day and open house, aimed at interesting prospective students and community members in the university, will begin Saturday with 9 a.m. registration. Featured will be music, refreshments, information tables and a welcoming address by UCSC Dean of Admissions, Richard Moll.

Workshops and student-guided tours will follow from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. to areas open to the public, including the eight colleges, the farm and garden, the Long Marine Laboratory and the McHenry Library. The Friends of the Library will hold their annual map sale at the library.

At lunchtime, visitors can buy box lunches or bring their picnic lunches to eat on the Cowell College Green.

More information on alumni events is available at 429-2530. Information about Founders Day is available at 429-2501 and on preview day, at 429-2705.
