

Demonstrators Delay Buses

Law enforcement officers were taking local men to the induction center in Oakland early this morning. An estimated 400 persons tried to stop the buses from departing from county center.

Lawmen break up part of the crowd that was attempting to hold two buses from going to the Army induction center in Oakland.

Some 400 young people momentarily held up two buses going to the Oakland induction center at 6:30 a.m. today. The buses, carrying draftees, finally left from county center with the assistance of sheriff's deputies and city policemen.
