Crown College Library

Surrounded by the classroom buildings and residence quarters at Crown College will be the new college library now under construction and scheduled for completion in January, 1968. The structure was designed by Ernest J. Kump and Associates. Crown College, the third in the UCSC complex, opened this fall with an initial complement of 525 students and 35 faculty fellows.

Construction also is in progress on College Four which is to be located on a site near Crown College and which will open next year with an enrollment of 500 students.
