Sen. Kenneth Keating, R-N.Y., recently asked the Library of Congress to survey the situation

This air view of the new Cabrillo college campus made this week shows the project about 20 per cent completed. The upper area will contain the academic buildings. Foundations are complete for the major buildings. The lower area, by Soquel drive, will house the athletic facilities. The square shaped form in this area is earth mounds which will help protect the college's swimming pool from winds. The school is expected to open September, 1962.
