THE GREAT RACE

Ken "Whale Belly" Williams is quoted as saying that his manager, Bill Raffo conspired with "Long Strider" Jones. Raffo, under the guise of training, (as Ken tells it) took Ken on a 6-mile run along West Cliff Drive. His legs, which weren't much to start with, were ruined and he had to forfeit the race. He is sure Jones bought Raffo a pizza or something to get him to turn on him.

During the interview with "Whale Belly" at the "forfeiture" picnic, he stated "...even though I lost the Great Race, I am still mostly belly! I am thinking of challenging Jones to a sitting contest or a self-hypnosis contest." Based on Ken's demonstration of self-hypnosis at the picnic, Strider has no chance at winning such a contest.

Whale Belly is further quoted as saying "I am issuing a new challenge to Jones—a kayak race to the brink of NIAGARA Falls. He (Jones) will go first and I'll sell tickets and souvenirs to the spectators."

The race may have been a disappointment to all fans, but the "forfeiture" picnic was well worth it and a good time was had by all!

Thursday night the City Sinkers remained undefeated, sinking the B & W team 33-29 in the C basketball league. The game was rather foul-prone with the Sinkers losing their center, Yeckley, early in the second half and guard Brown late in the game. Yeckley still managed 8 points and Brown 3 before leaving the game. Totten, the fighting forward, also clicked for 8, with forward King scrambling for 4, guard Piper lofting for 4 and guard Stovall finessing for 6. The game was close all the way, with the Sinkers ahead 14-13 at the half. The final two minutes saw the Sinkers ahead by a mere 3 points, but hustle and clutch baskets pulled them away from their muscular but awkward opponents. In league play, the Sinkers are now 1-0, with 9 tumultuous games to go.

PLAYERS ARE STILL NEEDED!!
