

Long-distance help for today's edition

Because there was no power in Watsonville, today's Register-Pajaronian was put together and printed in San Luis Obispo at the Telegram-Tribune, a sister publication of the Register-Pajaronian.

Stories were sent from Watsonville using battery-operated portable computers and sent over phone lines.

Three members of the Register-Pajaronian editorial staff and two staff photographers drove to San Luis Obispo this morning. They were assisted by members of the Telegram-Tribune in putting out the paper.

After the paper was printed this afternoon in San Luis Obispo, it was flown back to Watsonville.
