

Wm. T. Day, In Sacramento

Wm. T. Day, after being a reporter on the "Morning Sentinel" for eight years, has gone to Sacramento to work on the Evening Bee, a larger paper and at an increased salary, the ability and responsibility being in proportion to the size of press and city. Mr. Day goes higher thoroughly impressed with the idea that his service in the "Sentinel" office has prepared him for all that will be demanded at his hands in the office of the Bee. We wish to say of Mr. Day: He is a safe, conscientious reporter; assembles his facts with care, and can be original on occasion. His character is without a blemish, and we wish him and his little family all the good fortune that can come to a husband and father who, for the first time, leaves the county of his birth, and life service.
