

New Boulder Creek Community Center

Boulder Creek's super-active recreation commission, after years of planning, helped bring this community center into being. It is located behind the fire hall on the play grounds. It has been mainly used for dancing and roller skating.

Interior Of Center

This is the interior of the new Boulder Creek community center, completed in May. Eventually the recreation commissioners may add sliding doors to enclose it. At the far end are rest rooms, a stage and store room. Built with recreation tax money, it is open to the public. Commissioners are Bill Kleyn, Jack Willis, Jack Hayes, Carl Staley and George "Hoot" Cress Jr.

Lodge Campaigns In Ohio And West Virginia

Huntington, W. Va. (AP)—Republican vice-presidential nominee Henry Cabot Lodge moved into the coal-and-steel areas of West Virginia, northern Ohio and western Pennsylvania today to press the theme that the GOP is the best prepared to cope with cold war problems.

Lodge flew to Huntington today fresh from a rousing ovation at the Ohio Republican convention in Columbus where he asserted: "America is still the primary symbol and force for human progress. What this nation stands for is still the greatest hope of man."

The veteran of countless debates with Soviet representatives in the United Nations said the 1960 presidential campaign is a basic life-and-death contest between Communists and those who insist on being free.

It was Lodge's first major campaign address since his resignation as U.S. ambassador to the U.N. September 3.
