

Felton Presbyterian Church Project Halfway Completed

(Top) The goal of the Felton First Presbyterian church's congregation has been half fulfilled with the completion of a Sunday school section recently along Highway 9 in Felton, across from Division of Forestry headquarters. It was dedicated January 2. Services are being held in the fellowship hall. The main building will be the next project. This one cost $75,000. Construction is of pumice stone brick, redwood trim, with open beam ceiling. There is room for 29 Sunday school classes, a kitchen nursery and the big building on the end, (left) is the fellowship hall.

(Below) Here is one of the Sunday school rooms in the new Felton First Presbyterian church. The Reverend C. Winfield Blount said that the project was started last June. Despite the tremendous cost of the new building $3300 was set aside for missionary work. The church is also a meeting place for Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts. There are eight Sunday school assembly rooms like this one in the building.

COSMETOLOGISTS HAVE HAIR STYLIST AS GUEST

A hair cutting and hair styling demonstration by Roy Gackle of San Francisco will follow tomorrow's dinner of the Santa Cruz unit, California Cosmetologists association, scheduled for 7 p.m. at the St. George hotel.

All cosmetologists are invited.
